BATAAN IS GEARING UP FOR A SKILLED WORKFORCE

The problems of a mis-aligned industry and education system:

It is a common issue globally that the education systems and industries are mis-aligned. The lack of current Labor Market Information and not projecting the workforce requirements of key industries lead to the shortage of talent and further widening of the skills gap between the workforce with the requirements of companies. A workforce development system must be set in place to be able to address these looming issues with the workforce .

ACT's WorkKeys System - The platform for workforce development:

Career Readiness is ACT's workforce development system which provides a curriculum for developing skills, an assessment which validates individual's career readiness skills, and a certification to provide recognition and distinction. Establishing an efficient and relevant workforce development system in your region is critical in building a sustainable and competent talent pipeline for the industries the province supports.
